

Coach Delivery Playbook

This operating guide turns the Couples Budget Reset into a structured delivery asset you can review before calls, use in training, or hand to another coach supporting the same offer.

Working summary

Session 1 helps the couple see the real picture together. Session 2 helps them agree what to do next and how to make that plan work in real life.

Purpose of the offer

The Couples Budget Reset is designed for couples who feel capable but financially disorganised, stretched, or stuck. The work should create calmer conversations, clearer priorities, and a shared plan that feels realistic enough to follow.

Core principle	What it means in delivery
Calm over pressure	The sessions should feel steady, non-judgemental, and practical rather than intense or corrective.
Clarity over complexity	The goal is not technical analysis. The goal is a clearer shared picture and better decisions.
Shared ownership	Both partners should leave knowing what happens next rather than one person carrying the mental load alone.
Practical movement	Every session should end with decisions, priorities, or next steps that can actually be used.

Scope boundary

This work covers budgeting support and financial organisation only. It does not include regulated financial, investment, pension, tax, mortgage-product, or legal advice. It is also not debt counselling, therapy, crisis support, or dispute mediation.

If this comes up	Coach response
Specialist advice request	Acknowledge it clearly, note that it sits outside scope, and return to the next practical organisational decision inside the coaching remit.
Emotionally loaded conflict	Reduce blame, slow the conversation, and keep attention on clarity and shared process rather than taking sides.

Overall delivery rhythm

The package works best when the first session creates visibility and the second session creates movement. The first session should not rush into fixing everything. The second session should not reopen every possible issue.

Stage	Main job	Primary outcome
Session 1	Make the real money picture visible	Shared clarity about current reality and pressure points
Between sessions	Keep momentum light and manageable	A few simple prompts, not heavy homework
Session 2	Turn clarity into practical decisions	A shared action plan with realistic next steps
After the package	Reinforce follow-through	Written summary and optional follow-up support

Before Session 1

The goal before the first call is to reduce friction and help the couple arrive ready to talk honestly. Keep the tone personal and low-pressure.

Pre-session aim	Practical approach
Lower emotional pressure	Reassure them that the point is clarity, not judgement.
Set expectations	Explain that Session 1 is about understanding the current picture, not solving everything immediately.
Reduce preparation burden	Ask only for light preparation or simple prompts rather than extensive documents.
Encourage joint attendance	Position the session as shared work rather than one partner being assessed.

Session 1: money clarity

Session 1 is designed to slow the conversation down and make the current situation visible. The core objective is to help both partners see the same picture at the same time.

Stage	What to do	What good looks like
Open the conversation	Set a calm tone, explain the session aim, and reinforce that the goal is clarity rather than blame.	Both partners feel they can contribute without being judged.
Map the current money picture	Bring income, spending, savings, obligations, and current pressures into one shared view.	The couple can describe their situation in simple, concrete terms.
Surface pressure points	Notice where money feels stretched, avoided, emotionally loaded, or repeatedly postponed.	Hidden stress becomes discussable rather than vague.
Identify friction patterns	Highlight recurring loops such as avoidance, confusion, overload, uneven responsibility, or repeated disagreements.	The couple can name what keeps happening and why it matters.
Close with focus	Summarise the few issues that matter most and frame	They leave with clarity rather than overwhelm.

Stage	What to do	What good looks like what Session 2 needs to solve next.

Between sessions and Session 2

The gap between sessions should keep momentum alive without creating homework overload. Session 2 should then turn understanding into usable decisions.

Stage	Coach focus	Desired result
Between sessions	Send simple prompts, keep the work manageable, and help the couple notice what matters most.	Session 2 begins with momentum rather than drift.
Reconnect to Session 1	Restate the main pressure points and confirm what feels most important now.	The second session feels focused and connected.
Agree realistic priorities	Narrow the conversation to the few issues that deserve attention first.	The couple stops trying to fix everything at once.
Turn intentions into habits	Translate priorities into practical routines, boundaries, or recurring decisions.	The plan feels livable, not idealised.
Define next actions clearly	Agree who will do what, what happens next, and what success looks like in the next period.	Both partners leave with clarity rather than assumption.

Recommended outputs after the package

The written summary should sound calm and practical, using plain language rather than formal advisory language.

Output	Purpose
Priority recap	Remind the couple what matters most right now.
Agreed next steps	Record the practical actions they decided on.
Focus points	Highlight the habits, boundaries, or conversations to keep returning to.
Scope reminder	Reconfirm that the work is coaching and organisation support, not regulated advice.
Optional follow-up	Offer check-in options if helpful for accountability or continuity.

Internal delivery sentence: Session 1 helps the couple see the real picture together; Session 2 helps them agree what to do next and how to make that plan work in real life.

Audience: Coach / internal use

Use: Delivery prep, training, consistency

Format: Polished HTML playbook